At Its Worst

At its worst point, I was so heavily marginalized, my life so ripped apart, every domain of my existence attacked severely; I had no money, my transportation was taken from me, car impounded, then auctioned off, bikes stolen from my garage, uprooted me from my home of twenty three years, my typical way of doing things, gone, any sort of past workflow, gone.

I did little for many months. I tried to exercise, to go to different places, get out of the house, anything to take my mind off of what had and happened and was still happening, but I couldn't shake off the outrage over the crimes I had endured, crimes that my own friends and family were refusing to acknowledge fully, let alone support me in going after the people behind the crimes.

When you see that all support has been rendered null and void, that the people employed to protect the citizenry from this kind of tyranny are the ones behind it, it takes the wind out of your sails. Still, I began looking for ways of putting a case together for the future and connecting with people that understood what was happening. I realized fast that the people doing this to me, like an obsessive mafia, intended to do everything in their power to make sure I made little to no progress in fighting back.

It's not out of the question for a person to end up taking their own life to escape the horrible pain, torment, isolation, and torture endured night and day. Or to hurt one of the many perpetrators who do everything in their power to make your life a living hell. These thugs deserve severe punishment but if that punishment comes from the fist of the person targeted, all the better for those behind the program. Finding ways to blame the victim, to criminalize the target, to cover the program, to take the onus off the madmen behind it is standard fare.

If I could give any kind of recommendation to people going through this, I would say do everything to hold onto what you have. Don't let them dismantle what has meaning to you. They are looking to destroy the well-being of people, to break the spirit, the will to go on. They know that a life broken is a life easily owned and enslaved.

Years Leading Up To The Overt Phase Of Targeting

In 2015 my life was still intact and functional although they were already working on taking it down. I would say that a again in more of a kind of focused manner after 2010. I was starting to have trouble getting things done after I got back from the Middle East. This got considerably worse in 2012 and 2013 and marked the final chapter in the takedown operation.

In 2012 and 2013, I was already talking to management about the transient problem in our neighborhood. One in particular was hopping the fence and getting into our dumpster. The transient problem was directly connected to this program. They were perps but I didn't know that at the time. I didn't know any of this terminology. I didn't know anything about targeting. I knew that something very strange was happening and it kept getting stranger as time went on.

Our neighborhood went from being a nice, quiet neighborhood to having a substantial number of homeless people meandering up and down our street at all times of the day. At one point, I talked to one. He got very confrontational and at that moment, a neighbor informant and agitator came over and started guilt-tripping me, saying that I was heartless and that this was her friend, that she was responsible for him being in that neighborhood and that he had a right to be there.

These people are dirty Stasi types who look for any way to profile, negatively profile a person in their own neighborhood. This homeless dude was hopping the fence so much that we started to call him the Dumpster Diver. He was camping outside of the Bank of America, which was behind our apartment on a street named La Brea. I went up to him on a few occasions because he was making an absolute mess. I could not believe that other people were not saying anything or doing anything. He was throwing trash everywhere. There was drug paraphernalia on the ground, all kinds of crap all over the place.

I told him he needed to find another place. I talked to the Bank of America management and they did nothing. They were clearly involved and enabling this kind of activity in our neighborhood. I noticed too around the same time that one of the lights on the side of the Bank Of America building, a light that is supposed to shine down on the parking lot, was turned up so that it shone in my son's bedroom. That is illegal. When the Dumpster Diver would not leave and Bank of America was not doing anything about it, I called the cops, and he finally left but came back from time to time.

The people around the neighborhood were clearly a part of the slander and persecution campaign. The businesses in our neighborhood were heavily involved. The entire city takes part in these operations because it's being managed by DHS, local law enforcement, and the informant network that connects to the police, most likely through Citizen and Business Policing organization like Infraguard. These businesses are like extensions of the Police State. They do the bidding of the police and the government and behave like an organized mob.

This includes banks, where I was messed with on many occasions. At Wells Fargo Bank, where I had an account or over 20 years, I experienced questionable behavior.

The neighborhood that I lived in had a very large orthodox Jewish population, especially on my street. The Hasidic Jewish population in my neighborhood were central to the harassment campaign. Jews, Masons, and local cops terrorized me in my neighborhood of almost twenty years.

The homelessness problem picked up in 2012 and 2013 maybe a little bit before.

Around that time, I noticed mold growing all over the shower ceiling and was concerned that it might be black mold, which is dangerous, especially for children. I complained to management and ownership about it and they said they would clean it and paint over it. That didn't work, as it came back. I asked them then if they could have someone come out and inspect it. They refused to pay for this. So I called a specialist and had them come out to check. He didn't give me a definitive answer and may have been involved. He said it wasn't dangerous black mold but that it was a problem.

It was a bad break out of mold. It's possible that the entire situation was orchestrated so that they could start working on profiling me as a problem tenant. I was experiencing a lot of tension between me and the management, much more than I had ever experienced before. y the Joanne Novell, who managed the place from Arizona for several years, seemed to have been put in place to create increasing antagonism over the years. We never had a problem with the management before. A sweet old lady named Faga lived on the premises and worked as manager when we first moved in.

Driving People Toward Isolation

If you traumatize a person so intensely that doing anything and everything in life becomes painful, stressful, then people stop doing, stop living. Their lives cease to function.

A person's relationships are stripped from them in this program. Stilted interactions with people take the place of natural ones. People act in ways that don't make sense, that make it seem like they know things about you they shouldn't. They psychologically harass and invade one's privacy as a rule, introduce details into conversations that you can't call them on, forms of doublespeak that are at once provocative and deniable. It's a truly sinister technique.

Whether a person knows they are doing this isn't easy to know. Either way, it is designed by the people who spearhead these programs to provoke and agitate. If you deal with that every time you go out in public, it makes sense that a person might start to retreat from the things that they typically do. Add to that financial marginalization and near total blacklisting, workplace mobbing if and when a person is able to get work, and you have a compelling recipe for anti-social behavior in a typically social and well-adjusted person.

The Stasi As A Template

This program can be understood very well by paying attention to the precedents set by Communistic, Fascistic, Totalitarian regimes of the past. We are in the final chapter of a fascistic totalitarian push that intends to envelop every country if allowed to do so.

The Communistic, East German, Secret Police force, known as the Stasi, and its horrific and evil Zersetzung program, comes closest to a precursor of what is happening now in United States and around the world. These were also the tactics used by the FBI in the 50s, 60s, and 70s during the subversive and disruptive CoIntelPro operations.

The goal of the Stasi was always to disrupt the forward movement of any individual or organization that they felt was antagonistic to their authoritarian regime. Personality and psychological profiling were a big part of anticipating this in people. The obsessive tracking of individuals that we see today in the United States coming from the NSA and Local, State, and Federal law enforcement is born out of the communistic practice of the Stasi. The Stasi punished people and engaged in willful criminality, persecution, and sometimes imprisonment of individuals without due process, and they wanted people to know that they did these kinds of things. The same is going on here in the United States but covertly. It is being denied and its truth suppressed by catch-all phrases such as "In the interest of National Security."

They have to be covert here because most of the population is still under the false impression that we live in a constitutional republic that honors freedom and individual rights. Subsequently, the program is stealthier and more deceptive because they cannot persecute individuals out in the open.

Instead, they use bogus concepts like "The War On Terror" to justify unconstitutional legislation such as the Patriot Act, which enables illegal profiling and the creation of a Terrorist Watch List, a list that is used to label any innocent individual they desire wrongfully to persecute and criminalize. This profiling started out as a watch list that included mostly those of Middle Eastern decent, always foreign and certainly not citizens, people who had allegedly legitimate ties to terroristic activity. Since, it has morphed into a list that includes anyone that is antagonistic to the draconian whims of the State.

It was never intended to be a war to catch terrorists only and protect freedom. 9-11, which was clearly an inside job to anyone who does a few hours of research, most likely spearheaded by the CIA and Mossad, was an excuse to instill fear and outrage in freedom-loving Americans, thus making would making them more amenable to the subsequent rights-stripping legislation.

We have gone from only focusing on a foreign enemy to the ability to track and scrutinize everyman, woman, and child on American soil.

But it's much worse. These Zersetzung operations now take advantage of innovations in technology, namely neuro-weaponry and Directed-Energy weapons, due to their versatile capacity and functionality and their ability to remotely interface with anyone on Earth. The technology now used does not just have the ability to track our whereabouts, online habits, and external daily activity. This Orwellian police state now surveils and profiles the internal workings of the mind. They can program behavior in an individual without their awareness and then lead them into situations that from the victim's perspective are entirely innocent but from the perspective of the agents serve as fuel for building a damning behavioral profile that will be used over time to take down the reputation and life of the individual.

This profiling began with a focus on foreigners terrorizing this country, foreigners from the middle East. That qualifier has expanded and now includes anyone that questions or challenges the United States government.

The FBI came out recently saying that anybody who talks about topics that fall under the category of conspiracy theory will be labeled as potential extremists. The level of propaganda in this country is like propaganda used in past authoritarian regimes.

Since repealing the Propaganda Ban in 2014, the government has the legal right to lie with impunity, without consequence.

What did the Stasi do in communist East Germany to citizens it deemed subversive to their totalitarian ideology. They developed a brutal and horrific system of persecution and torture that dismantled a person's life, driving him toward psychological breakdown, suicide, institutionalization, or prison.

How is that different from what is happening now? It isn't.

In present day America, this program is broad and wide. It connects directly to law enforcement on a local, state, and federal level. This interfaces with the DHS, the Fusion Centers, which interface with the intelligence agencies and the military.

Formalization of this practice does not take away from its egregious criminality. As in East Germany, these criminal thugs continue to drive people toward the point of no return, toward absolute destitution, suicide, violence, insanity.

What they do is criminal. It's an act of treason. They have waged war on the citizenry of this country. Their deeds are punishable by death. They circumvent the Constitution, use legislation like the Patriot act, the National Defense Authorization Act, Mental Health Legislation Act to surveil, monitor, harass, profile, persecute, terrorize in the interest of national security and public safety.

No legislation excuses what is being done. Even if they are legally undermining the law. Good luck convincing history that you were anything but vile criminals.

These operations are at a level beyond previous iterations. They can scale up or scale down. The scaled up is worldwide and the scaled down is individualized. They are going after the entire world this time. Every man, woman, and child.

The operation that formed around me connects to local law enforcement which connects to the local Masonic power which connects to the national and international Masonic power which connects to the international Judaic power, which is behind the Luciferian New World Order.

Red doors and black doors on houses are a Masonic signal of affiliation. I first had this insight in my own neighborhood, a neighborhood I grew up in and one I was brought back to when this operation went overt. Several neighbors have red doors, an unusual frequency. Recently, I have been sent on orders when delivering food, to streets where several doors are red or black or in between two pillars. Clearly Masonic.

This is part of their ritual. It's what cults do. It involves enveloping my world, every environment -- online, offline, localized and physical, internal and neurological. The model is parasitic.

The Stasi also operates like a cult. They fill a person's life with destabilizing and provocative experiences meant to overwhelm and dominate. The goal is to encourage the target to give up or give in, to cooperate and even start working with them, which I will never do.

It's difficult to find hard documentation on the practices of the Stasi. There was supposedly a 50-page manual but I cannot find it online. I think it was aggressively kept under the radar, very much like what the CIA, FBI, NSA, and DOD do today. They classify any documentation they don't want people to know about.

Anchor Points

Precision timed events and anchor points are an integral component of this program. Since the targeting went overt, anywhere I have gone I have experienced this. Once they did the same thing with my family, who have no idea what's going on, it proved to me that the mapping and impulse control technology could be use on anyone without their awareness.

The perpetrators, the conscious witting informants, those who work for the DHS, police, intelligence agencies, military, and whomever else, they know what they are doing. They could also be under the spell of the same technology, subconsciously influenced and fine-tuned when around a target but they signed up for this. They are benefiting from it, getting perks and rewards. There is a system in place, and they follow it without question.

Anchoring involves focusing a person's brain onto a particular event -- a sight, sound, any stimulating experience -- elements in one's environment that they would not have paid attention to prior to this experience. Now they can communicate ideas and weave covert narratives around a person without others picking up on it. This is a modern day form of covert intelligence communication.

The anchoring connects to operant conditioning, which connects to trauma-based Monarch Programming. A person's senses are being heightened, conditioned through repetition to enhance acute awareness and reactivity to the elements of one's environment. The brain is now expecting certain things to happen at circumstantial points in time.

These anchors and anchor points are invisible to the general population, the unaffected. They are used for many reasons. They can be used to reinforce veiled threats. They can be used to reinforce programmed narratives. They can be used to degrade, abuse, provoke, terrorize, seduce. All of these reasons are motivated by the desire to control the individual.

Anchoring tactics

Throughout a particular day, the informants are instructed to repeat an action, word, phrase, sound, or visual so that I become sensitized to it. This is called anchoring or sensitization.

These provocation tactics increase reactivity in a person if repeated often enough. To the casual observer, the activity around a target may seem normal or mildly noticeable but still inconsequential and certainly not intentionally malicious. This is the cleverness of these operations.

For people not targeted, the environment around a target is perceived like any other environment. For the target, they are experiencing a collective accumulation of methodical, psychological harassment and warfare that has been waged on them every day and night for years.

Anyone else around the victim when they do react will likely perceive that individual's behavior as erratic or overly reactive. This increases psychological trauma and traumatic stress in the victim and is further insult to injury. When the victim is further blamed or the truth of the experience dismissed, the reaction may intensify.

The handlers know exactly what they are doing and they deliberately feed into the pain, suffering, abuse, torture, and trauma. The isolation and internal despair that can arise from this kind of denial of one's experience can lead to severe depression and suicidal ideation.

Action Reaction Model and Tactics of Provocation

I get hit with a heavy aggression on the road. Today, toxins are coming out of the ventilation that seem like some kind mild nerve agent. The same toxins come out of the ventilation in the bedroom. This has happened in two different states.

The retaliatory, action/reaction model that is established in this program is used to modify and control behavior. When I started putting together evidence of the crimes being waged on me, I get hit with various forms of consequence and retaliatory attacks to try and dissuade me from pursuing. The program is designed to figuratively and literally get into a person's head through the use of various types of psychological warfare as well as technology that can beam thoughts, emotions, telepathic dialogue straight into a person's brain.

The program is designed to make a person look unstable but over time, people with intelligence start to see the repetitive nature of the play book in action. Clearly, these people don't think for themselves. They act like low level military but less trained and are instructed to robotically follow orders and nothing less.

Surveillance is used to reinforce further the slanderous profiling. Almost certainly, they pick and choose the moments when a person is most at their wit's end and cursing these people to hell, and then use that to behaviorally profile and incite contempt in the perpetrators. The fact that the victim is being persecuted, marginalized, terrorized, and tortured gets left out of the picture that is painted.

At first in Los Angeles, I knew that I was being harassed, terrorized, and threatened by gangs of people but nothing more. I didn't know that a program like this existed, a program that sanctions criminal behavior all over the country, that employees people to commit treason and crimes against humanity.

When I filed a police report for identity theft, I didn't realize that the informant perpetrators that were mobbing and harassing me all over town actually work with the police.

The action-reaction model connects to Operant Conditioning and Pavlovian Conditioning, which connects to Trauma-Based Programming and Trauma-Based Psychology. The idea is to take a person's life, rip it apart, get the person down to nothing, no means of support, no means of legitimate recourse. Once they are successfully beaten down and barely functional, the handlers proceed to shift their paradigm of experience, get the victim to focus on the newly crafted world, a weaponized, internal and external world created by handlers for the sole purpose of traumatizing and conditioning the victim into a new set of behaviors, an alternate personality to the one organic to the person.

Looking at sophisticated forms of Monarch programming, handlers who work on children from an early age condition their minds to respond to stimuli in ways that other people would not. It could be a color, a word, a visual of some sort, or a sound. Once anchored, once the person hears the sound or sees the visual, they will be triggered into a response. If you spend enough time creating anchors, by the end of the programming the person's world will be a continual string of anchors and triggers that will evoke intended responses and subsequent behavior.

This kind of behavioral modification and conditioning often involves negative and punitive forms of reinforcement. This is the action/reaction, real-time consequence model. Once this model of conditioning has been established, the handlers can increase or decrease the level and degree. I call this degrees of consequence or conditional degrees of consequence.

Say I write about the torture and targeting, or I call someone to talk about it, or I upload evidence to YouTube. The handlers are watching everything that I do, surveilling every thought that I have, and quantifying how much punishment, abuse, and torture I deserve for my actions. I may get hit with this that night when trying to sleep, but it can also happen throughout the day, and at its worst in real time, all day long. The real-time assaults, punishment, and torture are very effective at maintaining persistent levels of traumatic stress and keeping a person in a heightened fight or flight state. It is its own particular brand of sadistic evil.

To be sure, these tyrants, these sadistic handlers are war criminals except the war is one-way and invisible. What they are doing to people is punishable by death. That is written in law. But because the State is behind the program, the people operating the programs are being protected by the state. They are given license to engage in grossly inhumane and sadistic forms of torture.

These programmers spend many months conditioning the brain, using various tactics in the process. This is a sophisticated military and intelligence operation, a trauma-based, sadistic, Satanic Ritual Abuse MK ultra Monarch programming operation.

They look to completely break down the individual. Once broken, the rebuilding process takes place. The paradigm of experience, the internalization of the world around a person moves from natural and random to scripted and repetitive. One's day to day environment is now weaponized and embedded with layers of programming objectives.

After several months of this, the subject becomes saturated with so many different visual and auditory anchors and cues that life is now experienced in relation to the stimuli first.

If a person responds to such stimuli every time they are provoked to do so, the programmers know that they have effectively conditioned and reprogrammed the brain.

These handlers are interfacing with our brains, utilizing programming and brainwashing techniques to usurp our free will and autonomy without us knowing. Then they turn around and throw out innuendo that they want a person to "work with them" or "cooperate." The kind of people who do this can never be trusted. They are extreme criminals who have no regard for human freedom. They lie as a rule and value deception over all else. They belong in prison at the very least.

They may promise a person some kind of compensation for all that they have done if the victim, for example, gets rid of their evidence of said crimes. This has been done to me. It is a form of covert bribery.

The goal again is to control the subject in any way possible. If money works, then they will focus on money. If women (or men) are a person's weakness, then they will use that as a bartering tool. Their interest is in controlling the subject using any means possible. Whatever works is fair game.

If you don't go along and you start not only going against the program but exposing it, then you will see the true colors of these people fast. They are cruel, ruthless, and cowardly. They hide behind facades of legitimacy like the military, intelligence agencies, and law enforcement to disguise their criminal ways.

Persecution Model

The model that these operations adhere to is a persecution model. Under that umbrella, you will find myriad tactics designed to profile a person in a hateful light, to generate contempt toward someone at all times. The program follows a person, the persecution goes wherever you go. A target is ganged up on by thousands of informants.

The slander campaign built around a target seems to be spearheaded by the Department of Homeland Security and the fusion centers that directly interface with local law enforcement. These corrupt organizations spread lies, portraying a person in an extremely negative and one-sided light that feeds into stereotypes, stereotypes like a terrorist, drug dealer, rapist, pedophile, anything to convince people that you are a menace to society. This is deliberately stereotyped and lacking dimension. Details of a person, details that might paint a more complete and human picture of someone, are left out. The goal is never to balance out the picture but to distort it in the favor of those doing the profiling. Like the propagandized news, this program spreads toxicity composed of non-stop lies, disinformation, extreme prejudice, and racial profiling. The irony of all this, though, is that the people who do this to us are actually those things: terrorists, drug runners, rapists, and child molesters.

To take a person's life down in such a way is an extreme crime, crime against humanity, and an act of treason.

Signs and Symbols Propagandizing Our Brains

The world is designed to reinforce programming of all types. Signs and symbols, logos and brand names, the ever-present usage of these within the consumer industry stem from occult practices. It is a hidden language that can be activated at any time. If you know how to speak it, a person can use it to communicate without ever saying a word.

When I walk into a store, for example, remote agents may interface with my brain to focus me on an object, a word, a sign or symbol, any visual, to communicate any idea.

Rather than using media like television or the internet, intelligence agencies and corporations are now using technology that interfaces with our brains. Before the advent of this technology, they were using the media as a primary means of propaganda and mass programming. Now, they propagandize our brains directly.

This layer is prevalent everywhere. These secret societies, the upper echelons of intelligence and military use this layer to communicate. Those who aren't in the know, who aren't connected to this network or to this technology consciously have no idea that it exists. We are brainwashed into perceiving the world through the lens of the upper layer, like the blue pill in the film The Matrix.

I always paid attention to things, questioned the world, but I didn't see it this clearly until my life got taken down by this program.

Perception management and manipulation

I said years ago that several so-called leaders in the TI circles online were likely controlled opposition assets. Now there is a lot of drama and name-calling going back and forth, which could also be staged to divide and conquer any real opposition.

I realized early on that the handlers were working to get me to perceive, internalize, and react to these contrived events from an emotional point of view. If they want, they can map out a sequence of thoughts and those thoughts are designed to get me to feel a certain way about a particular person.

How do they do this in relationships? They are still pulling from actual experience and interactions between two people. But these interactions are being managed by handlers who are coexisting with the people involved. I think of it like scripted dialogue in a screenplay. The CIA and the Pentagon are heavily involved in the film and television industry. It's the same people that work on our brains and write the scripts for our lives.

In a scene, for example, dialogue between people is written, as well as any action of visual sequences. The dynamics and emotional tone between the characters are then decided upon by the director who works with the actors to give life to the words on the page.

In the case of unwitting victims of this technology, the handlers are wearing the writer, director, and producer hats. They are working with teams of people, very much like a film production, where roles and responsibilities are compartmentalized, and everyone is working toward the same end goal: to make sure the scene plays out as intended. It's no accident that when the agents around us engage in staged behavior and visuals that it is termed Street Theater.

They are the actors and we are all Truman, the single guy who isn't in on the joke, whose life has been turned upside down, manufactured from birth, a profit machine that makes his handlers rich while he never sees a cent, all without his awareness let alone permission. He knows something is wrong, but he can't put his finger on it.

I have experience granular manipulation of relationship dynamics. This can be tech-driven or agent-driven. Either way, something would happen in the relationship to put that person into question for me. This is a theme. Is the person legitimate or are they not? I'm done playing those games but they still do it.

With this technology, the remote handlers can map out thoughts, emotions, perceptions, attitudes, even chemistry between two people. They can make or break any relationship on the planet.

Two Party Illusion

Anyone who still believes in the two party system is not seeing things clearly. This country is morally bankrupt and the presidents are like the fiat currency that is peddled by the Federal Reserve. They have greatly devalued what many consider the most powerful position in the world.

The Illuminati and the Masons have turned leadership into mockery. Have any past presidents ever had the power that we think they did? Certainly not in the last three quarters of a century but maybe never. Trump is a fall guy and entry point for this Judaic, Israeli, Totalitarian, New world Order final takeover. He is the proverbial punching bag that they propped up to represent this kind of white nationalist, Nazi extremist Patriotic, stereotypical profile. But he's bought and paid for by Israel. He was tapped a long time ago to play a part. That's what leaders do these days. They play parts. They don't lead.

The Damage These People Have Done And The Crimes I've Endured

We are living in a covert, totalitarian, communistic, fascistic regime in the United States of America. I have been assaulted, abused, tortured, traumatized, and terrorized every single day of my life for the last five years. To my knowledge. Without my awareness, their presence and influence is lifelong. It also affects my children. It is generational. My parents were in it. They have programmed similar experiences, adversity, generationally. This is not nature. This is not nurture.

This is a Satanic, Masonic, Kabbalistic, Judaic, New World Order, trauma-based, ritual abuse, MK-Ultra Monarch program, a program that connects to the highest levels of intelligence, the highest levels of military, and all the behind-the-scenes power that funds and owns the material world. Some call them the Illuminati or the New World Order. First and foremost, they are criminals.

These degenerate psychopathic handlers have systematically dismantled every domain of my life. This includes financial programmers, social, physical, neurological, cognitive, familial, parental, everything.

I've been hit so hard that the next day, I can barely recall what has happened the day before or even the week before. A big part of the programming involves shattering and traumatizing the memory. If they can manage the memory, reset it at will, then they have a better chance of keeping a person in a looped dysfunctionality or worse total stasis.

I'm having trouble thinking clearly because of the Directed Energy and neurological attacks I was hit with last night.

My life was taken down with method in 2015. They uprooted me and basically smoked me out of Los Angeles, my home and my family's home for over twenty years. So I came back to my home town thinking it would be temporary, a few months at most, and four years later, I'm still here. It was always designed this way. That is clear now. My life gets arranged behind the scenes. I am glued to a timeline that I fight daily.

I had a perp in Los Angeles at the McDonald's next to the LAX airport, tell me that he had to take care of his parents a while back for four and a half years. A few months back, a perp neighbor made a point to let me know that his grandfather passed away after a second stroke. This was right after my mom had her first stroke. This is an indication that my life, the lives of my family, are not our own, that these controller scum at the top of this pyramid arrange all aspects of people's lives they do this to, including death.

I was intensely terrorized in Los Angeles for several months. They were looking to permanently discredit me, to take my life down to such a degree that I could not fight back. I was slandered in my neighborhood and I was slandered by my own family.

The LAPD cops in Los Angeles were heavily involved. They were directly connecting to the DHS and Intel agencies, likely the FBI, the CIA and military. Cops were also around me as a kid. They are integral to these Satanic operations. The police are not what you think they are. Many act as handlers, protectors of the satanic power structure that drives this world.

In Los Angeles, I was attributing the thuggish presence around me to gangsters and a mafia network that connected to corrupt law enforcement. But now I know it's not just gangsters and Mafia. It's a satanic and Masonic that goes all the way to the top, the same power that is behind communistic New World Order, which connects to these targeting programs.

Tactics of provocation

Much of this program involves provocation.

I am at the Circle K right now. The employees are involved. Convenience stores are used as meeting perp hubs. Any kind of stopping point, like the gas station or a market, a place with a lot of in-and-out traffic, is used.

In the last few days they have getting into my personal space too much and too often. The goal is to provoke a reaction, to establish patterns of reactivity. This time, a soldier in fatigues came up right next to me, then reached over my food to grab something. Right after, another thug did the same thing. This piggybacks on yesterday, when I was delivering food, and a perp who ordered from me moved to close to me while I was bending down to grab the food out of the delivery bag. They want me to say something that they can then use to profile me.

I am sitting in my car waiting for another order, and I have constant activity around me. Informants coming and going non-stop. They are instructed to keep it going, to maintain presence always.

Much of what happens around us is staged theater. These clowns are instructed to do pretend like they're out of their minds or get into fake arguments. This is theater.

A guy just walked in the middle of the street with oncoming traffic passing him. He was talking to himself in a very overdone way, like he wanted to grab my attention. They know I make a lot of recordings and talk in the car when doing so, so they try and profile me as somebody who talks to himself. They are idiots.

I deal with Brain to Computer and Brain to Brain interfacing every day. This can translate into continual synthetic telepathy, which can come in the form of terror doctrine, internal threats to me or my family, threats of harm, threats of injury, threats of every type. Then it can move into extreme forms of internal harassment, torment, degradation, abuse of all types including sexual. They can also comment incessantly on anything that I'm doing, often telling me what to do or what not to do, which never works, but they still do it.

Perpetrators drive as a rule aggressively but tactically, often creating threatening scenarios on the road that could potentially lead to a harmful accident. Throughout the day this kind of energy is pointed in the target's direction. They are instructed to tail you closely, to put their lights on so that they shine in your rearview mirror. Then someone will pass at a much faster clip. Coded license plates too can serve as veiled threats and psychological warfare.

All of these tactics are meant to trigger a response. If these events happened even several times a week, they would still not have much of an impact. When they happen all day every day, they do. Military, intelligence, law enforcement, and the mafia wouldn't use them if they didn't work. Acting like they are going to run into my car when turning is another one. They will use cars with very bright lights too to magnify the effect.

This isn't benign psychological theater. It can destroy a person's well being over time. Plus, they get people into accidents often. They took down my life, almost permanently. Moved me to the brink, the edge, the point of no return.

This is trauma-based programming. It is extremely criminal, regardless of it being sanctioned by the State. Criminal codes have not been put on the books yet to account for what they do, all the egregious crimes committed.

The idea with the road harassment, mobbing, and terrorism is to assault a person senses so that the brain never relaxes, which the body translates into a high state of stress. Ignoring it can not block out entirely this kind of relentless presence. They would not employ these tactics if they thought they could be overcome with ease.

They have refined and tested these programs and the techniques for decades.

Construction along my route is another anchor. They are blowing out parts of the road and then they put tiny little construction cones around them and turning it into a driving hazard. They will then use the technology to disrupt the memory. This tactical combination can end up hurting someone and no one would ever imagine that someone is orchestrating it remotely. But they are.

Power outages, construction work, pretty much anything that involves city workers, can and is used as psychological warfare on a target.

We are under the assumption that the government operates with integrity when they are asked to do some kind of job for the local population. Like the utility companies, the gas company, water and power but they aren't acting in good faith. They are messing with people on the job and they know it. It's arguable that many of these jobs are created out of thin air in order to keep the funding coming and to give them a reason on the job to harass and terrorize unwitting citizens.

I get enveloped by these caravans of informants while driving. Often they are lead by some kind of commercial vehicle, first-responder, or policeman. They run routes and take shifts on the road.

A fire engine just blazed by me while at a stoplight. No one has this many first responders and policemen around them, let alone with such precise timing. These are premeditated, coordinated events designed to capture my attention and intimidate. This one looks like an actual fire. Did someone intentionally set it? Threats of fires has been used on me for several years now. Steve Kelly talked about fires. Rhonda talked about fires. ZS Livingstone as well. Many people. Then I would have neighbors lighting fires in their front yards. So it's not out of the question that something like this is staged. (edited)

I hear around different targeting circles people saying that you don't have to explain yourself if or prove anything to anyone. I disagree. It's very important that people explain themselves, explain their reasoning, why they're doing what they're doing, what happened to them. Establishing trust is paramount in this murky world, where people claim to be one thing but are really entirely another.

It is not easy to explain what we have been through and why everything is happening the way it's happening, but it's important to keep trying. With Ramola, I found didn't explain her situation much. Maybe she felt she was past it, that it had all been done before, but letting people know what's happening keeps people grounded in the truth of one's experience. When she started having all of these guests on that were connecting to the programming narratives they had hit me with, things got sketchy, especially because she dismissed it as nothing, as if I was reading into it.

I was just talking about the architecture of the world, especially this country but really any modern, Western, industrialized nation. There's so much gaudy, eye candy, flashing neon signs, industrial type, consumer-based architecture where function dominates form. Building for the least to profit the most. Any more industrialized part of town demonstrates this. All the signs and the symbols, colors, gaudy style, no form, no taste. We as a culture have developed nostalgic attachments to restaurants, stores, markets. What we grow up in feels natural, even if it looks cheap, even though those who built it did so with the sole purpose of taking as much money from us as possible, without apology, fully intending to bankrupt society.

When I look at all these guys around me that are part of this program, they are one hundred percent products of this hyper-consumerism that sucks us into its void, like a visually addictive carnival ride, built by snake oil salesman and thieves of the night.

At the end of the day, it doesn't matter what they sell. It's less about the product and more about the control and power the selling of it brings. Cars, houses, vacations, people, children, ideas, beliefs systems, everything to them has a price.

The dismantling of my life

How did they methodically dismantle my life?

When I left LA, I had practically nothing. I had a bag, a backpack of clothes, a couple of computers, and that was it. I had been terrorized so intensely in LA, that by the time I got on the plane, I could barely keep it together.

They had worked hard to get me evicted. I was still trying to get to the bottom of this and didn't want to leave before I did.

After my wife had moved out with our sons, they started working hard on me to psychiatrically profile me. She left in June. I stayed until October. Her split was necessary to kick the operation into high gear.

After four solid months of intense harassment and crazymaking tactics by the perp neighbors around my apartment, I was primed for eviction. This was always the goal. They wanted me back in the Louisiana where I grew up. This was a detailed, intricate, methodical plan, mapped long before the targeting went overt.

I have been labeled a pariah in the community. It follows me wherever I go. The modern day watchlist more like a witch-hunt. Each of us has an invisible Scarlet letter affixed to our name. They put innocent people on these lists and scrutinize our every move when it's the people who spearhead these operations that should be thrown in prison. They are the biggest criminals on the planet and they roam free, get rewarded by the State for doing its bidding without question. They have flipped the script. The world is inverted.

They have attacked my brain intensely with this technology for years now. They were pushing hard toward a breakdown. I came close. Part of the takedown operation, part of the profiling involves covering for the program by discrediting the victim. Making a person look incapable of maintaining a normal life, being gainfully employed, taking care of their family, maintaining responsibilities, is part of the program. This is why I found myself struggling in all aspects of my life. They were intent on profiling me as a deadbeat, someone incapable of maintaining his life.

It is the most diabolical and criminal program ever created.

The tyrants who run this world see people as programmable objects, pieces of meat to be used to further political agenda and ideology. They expect their subjects to cooperate or else. If you reject their wishes, then you become expendable, a liability, to be kicked to the curb or destroyed outright. This is what I contend with every day At forty five, I found myself staring down this kind of evil, an evil that had been present in my life from birth but never known, never seen until now.

I live a shattered life, broken pieces strewn about. I continue to pick them up, slowly, one by one.
